RUSSIA: Jehovah's Witness criminal cases - list

By Victoria Arnold, Forum 18 (<https://www.forum18.org>)

Full list of 116 Jehovah's Witnesses known to have been charged or named as suspects for "extremism"-related "crimes" as of 19 February 2019. Of these, 26 are in detention, 28 under house arrest and 42 under travel restrictions. When any of these cases might reach court is unknown.

A total of 116 people are now known to Forum 18 to be under criminal investigation across Russia on charges of or on suspicion of organising, participating in, or financing Jehovah's Witness activity. The criminal investigations are a direct result of the Supreme Court's 2017 decision to outlaw the Jehovah's Witness Administrative Centre and its subdivisions as "extremist" and ban all their activities.

The Supreme Court banned Jehovah's Witnesses on 20 April 2017, a decision it upheld on 17 July 2017. (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2297)

The authorities have from January 2018 onwards intensively raided Jehovah's Witness homes across Russia (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2412), continuing less frequent raids that took place before Jehovah's Witnesses were banned in 2017 (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2220). Despite the Jehovah's Witnesses being doctrinally pacifist, the raids often involve heavily armed riot police or National Guard troops carrying machine guns. The raids are usually led by the Investigative Committee, but officers of the FSB security service and the police Centre for Combating Extremism have also participated. (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2381)

A further four Jehovah's Witnesses were charged with "extremism"-related offences before the ban came into force. Two – Arkadya Akopyan and Dennis Christensen - have already been convicted. Two more - Sergei Skrynnikov and Yury Zalipayev - are still on trial. (http://www.forum18.org/archive.php?article\_id=2453)

In Russian-occupied Crimea, the FSB security service has also brought a criminal case against at least one local Jehovah's Witness, Sergei Filatov. He has had to sign a pledge not to leave his place of residence as the investigation continues. ### Figures

A total of 116 Jehovah's Witnesses have been charged with "extremism"-related "crimes" or named as suspects as of 19 February 2019. The majority of these people – 26 women and 90 men – have been investigated for "continuing the activities" of the banned Jehovah's Witness Administrative Centre and its local communities.

As of 19 February 2019, 26 people are in pre-trial detention (24 men, two women), 28 people are under house arrest (25 men, three women), and 42 people (19 women, 23 men) are under travel restrictions. Four men have been placed under specific restrictive conditions, and one under an obligation to present himself when summoned by investigators (obyazatelstvo po yavke).

Fifteen people (two women, 13 men) are currently thought to be under no restrictions.

Six people are on the Interior Ministry's federal wanted list as their whereabouts are unknown. Two of them – Fail Samigullovich Shangareyev (born 16 December 1960) and Olga Timofeyevna Sandu (born 31 March 1984) – are known to have left Russia.

It is unknown when any of the criminal cases against the 116 individuals will come to court.

Restrictive measures

After extensive searches of their properties and confiscation of personal belongings, Jehovah's Witnesses are usually taken to a police station or FSB or Investigative Committee office for questioning. Interrogations can last many hours, and sometimes continue through the night. Officers may then release them or hold them at a temporary detention centre for 48 hours. After 48 hours, individuals may be released under travel restrictions or investigators request a court to approve longer-term restrictive measures – house arrest or pre-trial detention.

Travel restrictions may be applied indefinitely, but investigators must renew them every two weeks – when summoned, a suspect or accused person must attend the relevant state agency to sign another undertaking not to leave the town or district.

A judge may place an individual under house arrest for an initial period of two months, towards the end of which investigators must go back to court to seek an extension. Under house arrest, a person may not leave his or her home (unless under special dispensation to go to hospital or, in some cases, to work), receive visitors, send or receive post, use the telephone, or use the internet.

A judge may place an individual in pre-trial detention also for an initial period of two months, towards the end of which investigators must go back to court to seek an extension.

Individuals may appeal to a higher court to have these restrictive measures lifted or reduced. A new law signed by President Vladimir Putin on 3 July 2018 stipulates that one day in pre-trial detention now counts as one and half days in a labour camp ("correctional colony") after sentencing. This will be applied retroactively. Previously, jail sentences were reduced by exactly the length of time a person had served in pre-trial detention.

Investigators have opened cases against these Jehovah's Witnesses under Criminal Code Article 282.2, Part 1 ("Organisation of the activities of a banned extremist organisation") or Part 2 ("Participation in the activities of a banned extremist organisation"), and in a few instances under Criminal Code Article 282.3 Part 1 ("Financing of extremist activity"). If convicted, they could receive lengthy prison sentences or heavy fines.
